ons of the law General Casey has a force at ork preparing the plans, and expects them to be before Congress meets in December, and if they are approved he will have everything in readiness to begin building in the spring. The law requires that these plans shall be subject to the spection and approval of the Secretaries of War and Interior, but they will doubtless be considere by Congress before work is commenced. The matter will be brought to the attention of Congress in the annual report of the Chief of Engineers, if not as a special measure before the report is submit-ted. Congress will undoubtedly therefore have ample opportunity to pass upon the revised pro-porter to-day said that the plans which are being oposed will not contemplate the expenditure of proposed will not contemplate the expenditure of one cent beyond the limit fixed by law. Whether the building when completed will answer the requirements of the Congressional Library or not is a matter which he has nothing to do with. He intends to make the building complete, and as much of an addition to the architectural beauties of the city as $4,000,000 will permit. He intends to follow architecturality the original Smithmeyer plan, but it will, of necessity, be considerably reduced. The plan of the interior originally agreed upon will also be followed.

REVISING THE PLANS. Mr. P. J. Pelz is the architect who is in charge of revising the plans. As an associate of Mr. Smithmeyer in devising the original plans, he was Smithmeyer in devising the original plans, he was considered eminently fitted to modify them. The force, in addition to the architect, includes the superintendent of construction, B. R. Green, nine draughtsmen, and three watchmen—about half as large a force as was employed under the former regime. The building as contempiated will occupy the same site as was originally intended, in the middle of the square, but of course will not cover so much ground. Gen. Casey has decided on this, although a delegation of residents of Capitol Hill urged him to set the building to one side, so that Pennsylvania avenue can be opened again through the grounds.

THE GROWTH OF THE LIBRARY. Gen. Casey said to-day the plans will not make any provisions for the future growth of the library. Being a building complete in itself, although there may be plenty of room, no additions can be made to it without injuring materially the architectural effect. If in the future additional room is required it will be necessary to construct another building, and this will require more ground.

HOW THE WORK WILL BE DONE. If the plans are approved, and Gen. Casey is authorized to construct the building, he will begin as soon as possible making contracts for the maas soon as possible making contracts for the material, so as to begin work when the building season opens. The work of construction will be carried on after the same methods adopted on the west wing of the State, War, and Navy Department building. After contracting for the materials they will be placed in the building by contract, except where a careful inspection would not detect any departure from the specifications. In such cases the work will be done by day labor under the Government. Mr. Green, who superintended the construction of the War Department building, will also have charge of the Library

WHAT LIBRARIAN SPOFFORD SAYS. Mr. A. R. Spofford said to a STAR reporter to-day that he is entirely satisfied with the outlook for new Library building. Now that all the objections which were raised to the erection of the building as originally intended have been removed, he is confident that the work will progress as rapidly as possible. The few months which will intervene before building operations can be begun, will, he said, permit of a thorough consideration of the plans which are being prepared, so that some of the preliminary contracts can be entered into and the work pushed forward rapidly. As to the character of the proposed building, Mr. Spofford said he knew nothing beyond the fact that it would follow as nearly as possible the plans as originally prepared, and he was satisfied, he said, that a building could be erected for $4,000,000, which would be suitable for the Library, and would afford ample provisions for the growth of the Library for the next twenty years. After that time an addition could be made or another building erected as Congress should decide. As for himself he was of the opinion that all of the ground to the northwest would eventually be required, but that was not a matter for present consideration. He would be satisfied with the building, which would provide for the next twenty years, and is well pleased with the prospects of securing it at as early a date as posnew Library building. Now that all the objecnext twenty years, and is well pleased with the prospects of securing it at as early a date as pos-

THE LABOR BUREAU. The Result of Interviews with 17,000 Women-Statistics of Divorce

The annual report of the Commissioner of Labor. Col. Carroll D. Wright, will be sent to Congress when that body meets in December. It is devoted nainly to statistics in regard to the condition of working women in this country. The facts colated have reference to the social, sanitary, and conomic affairs of women employed in shops and actories. An interesting incident of these statistics is that they were collected by women who were employed as special agents of the Department for that purpose. Over 17,000 women were aterviewed, and the results are being tabulated and it is believed that the subject matter of the report will make it one of the most interesting ever issued by the Labor Department. "THE DIVORCE STATISTICS."

The force of specialists in the department are engaged in collecting the statistics in regard to cations.

A POSTAL CLENK ARRESTED. — Railway Mail Superintendent Bancroft was to-day informed by Superintendent Bancroft was to-day informed by Superintendent Gwin, of New York, of the arrest of Postal Clerk J. W. Wilkins on the charge of rifling letters. Wilkins was employed on the New York and Philadelphia line, and while the train was stopping at Philadelphia the cierk in charge returning unexpectedly to the car detected Wilkins in the act of mutilating a letter. The letter was recovered, and Wilkins was arrested upon the arrival of the train in New York city.

PRETENDED TO BE A GOVERNMENT OFFICER.—The Commissioner of Pensions has been advised that Harry Haighward, alias W. H. Brady, was arrested on the 29th inst., charged with violating the provisions of the act of Congress approved April 18, 1884, by faisely pretending to be an officer of the United States Government. He was arraigned before United States Commissioner Geo. B. Brooks, East Saginaw, Mich., and in default of $1,000 bail was committed to jail to await examination.

Assistant Secretary Thompson said to a STAR re-porter yesterday that his statement was not pre-pared under orders; the made it of his own motion that the public might know the truth of the situa-tion. The books of the Treasury show that the calculation of the Sun making it appear that the revenues will be three or four millions short of the expenditures is not correct. As was first disclosed in The Star the appropriations authorized by this session of Congress came within something over $17,000,000 of the estimated revenues for the year. If the revenues should tall under the estimate, it would, of course, bring the authorized expenditures nearer to the amount of the Government's income. The Department has frequently authorized the statement, however, that all the money appropriated this year could not be expended. Why this is the case has not been explained, and in the face of the fact that there is always a deficiency bill, the reason has not been generally comprehended. expenditures is not correct. As was first disclose of it is this: A very large amount of the money appropriated is for continuing work, which will be put out by contract, and will not be paid for unput out by contract, and will not be paid for until the work is done, which will carry the payments partly over until next year, and partly a year or perhaps two years later than that. This is the case as to the river and harbor improvements, largely; as to public buildings, some of which will not be completed for several years; as to naval vessels, ordnance and many other lesser items. It is estimated that between thirty-seven and forty million dollars of the appropriations so authorized will fall upon the revenues of other years. The expenditures are occurring and the revenues are coming in every month, and the tangible fact is that there is a surplus averaging about ten millions over the expenditures each month.

Up to to-day it amounts to more than seven millions during this month, having eight more days to accumulate in. It is not believed at the Department that the revenues for the year will fall much, if any, below their estimates. It may not appear plain, at first glance, if all the money appropriated cannot be expended in any year, why there is an annual deficiency bill. The reason is that appropriations are made specifically for certain bureaus and other branches of the Government, so that if the expenses of any branch exceed the appropriation there is at once a deficiency, though in all the others there might be a surplus. Beside this the deficiency bill provides for the payment of judgments for claims, &c., which, of course, could not be anticipated in any regular appropriation. It is expected that the Government in nearly all its branches will run within the appropriations this year and that the general deficiency bill to be passed the next session of Congress will be very small.

the total expense to $2,508,183. The cost of the movement of troops was $212,646. The accounts of the bonded Pacific Railroad amounted for transportation of troops, in the aggregate, to $310,699. The sum of $56,195 was paid for military transportation over the grant railroads. The total value of the ciothing and equipage issued to the militia was $112,638. The Quartermasier-General says that the question of providing lighter clothing to troops stationed in extremely hot regions has been settled by the selection of garments made of cotton duck and ordered to be issued to troops in Texas, Arizona, and the Department of the Missouri. In reterring to the occupation of a portion of the Government reservation at Arington, Va., by squatters, the Quartermaster-General recommends that in case of their removal, as suggested by a special board appointed to investigate the subject, they be paid for their buildings and improvements at the valuation fixed by the board.

Webster's manner was depressing, although the Irishman tried to get some merriment out of the pronunciation of Irish names. Outside the court matters were rather more lively. All day there was a crowd which the police kept constantly on the move. Parnell was clad in a short buff overcoat and black morning coat, carrying in his hand a small black bag. He was greeted with loud cheers. He walked with a firm clastic step, but seemed absorbed in thought, and did not notice his reception. Davitt was also recognized and greeted with the cry "Hurrah for the Land League."

paign is being conducted, and there is believed to be an abundance of the sinews of war. The campaign has been fought squarely by the republicans on the tariff issue, but the democratic speakers have dodged a fair fight, claiming that the Mills bill is a protective measure. The result will depend very largely on the influence of the discussion. Meetings have been largely attended by the factory operatives, and from all parts of the state republicans report decided accessions from the democratic ranks. Unless these reports are untrustworthy, and they ought not to be, the chances at the present writing favor the republican ticket. The prohibitionists have made great claims, some predicting as high as 10,000 votes. They will hardly poll half so many, although they will receive more republican votes for their state ticket than for the national. In 1884 they polled 2,489 votes. Their vote is usually larger in non-Presidential years, and in 1886 they touched highwater mark with 4,689. The recent town elections showed a decided failing off from the last preceding election. On national matters the lines will be drawn very closely this year, and it is hardly probable that on the presidential ticket at heavily probable that on the presidential ticket at hardly probable t paign is being conducted, and there is believed to

It shows that the balance in the Treasury to the credit of the Quartermaster's Department at the end of June 30, 1887, was $1,469,239.56. The various appropriations for the service of the Department for the year aggregated $9,218,657.67, and $778,222.23 was received from sales to officers, making total receipts $11,465,519.46. The total disbursements amounted to $10,148,016, leaving a balance, June 30, 1888, of $1,317,503. London, Oct. 23.—The absence of any startling velations, such as the backers of the Times confidently predicted, in the opening speech of Attor-ney-General Webster yesterday, robbed the first day's proceedings of the Parnell commission of day's proceedings of the Parnell commission of much of the anticipated interest. After Mr. Webster had proceeded for some time with the familiar story of "Parnellism and crime," with every indication that he intended to continue for several days, a good many of those who previously thought themselves fortunate in having seats left the court-room. Even the judges looked bored. In the course of the afternoon Judge Day had forty winks. Among those present during the greater part of the proceedings were Parnell, the two MacCarthys, O'Kelly, just released from prison; Davitt, Biggar, and Philip Call, a former nationalist member, now violently hostile to Parnell. Parnell sat next to Russell and Lewis, with both of whom he occasionally conferred. The editor of the Times sat on the same bench as Parnell, but at the other end of the court. With him were Manager MacDonald and Solicitor Roames.

The population of the country towns does not materially in crease from one presidential year to another; the increase in the population of the state is made in the cities, and there the democrats have an overwhelming advantage in the matter of new voters. Clarence Deming, formerly editor of an independent newspaper in this city and himself an independent in politics, has just returned from a tour of the state, made for the purpose of obtaining a correct knowledge of the situation as far as the national issue is concerned. He talks as fol-

ing a correct knowledge of the situation as far as the national issue is concerned. He talks as follows: "When I started out on this trip I had grave doubts about Connecticut being carried by the democrats; I have returned with the very strong belief that Cleveland will carry the state. In every place I visited I found that there has been an increase, a large increase, in the democratic registration. Even in some of the republican towns, where republicans expected encouraging increase in the new registration, they have been disappointed, while the democrats have made large gains in those very spots in this respect. There is less of this tariff scare this year than there was four years ago. Four years ago the manufacturers were telling their employes that the revision of the tariff would carry destruction and ruin to the workingmen. The four years the revision of the tariff would carry destruction and ruin to the workingmen. The four years have passed and there is no appearance of the ruin predicted by the employers, so they cannot scare the employes with the tariff issue this time, as they succeeded to some extent in doing in the last presidential contest. I must say that I have found a great deal less of the element of intimidation than there was formerly. There is very little of it. Here and there you will find a case of it, but it is nowhere near as general as some incividuals have the impression, or as it has been in the past. The reports I have received from those who are more closely connected with the labor movements in Connecticut indicate that the workingmen are showing a deeper interest, and are more ments in Connecticut Indicate that the working-men are showing a deeper interest, and are more eager in their study of the tariff question than ever, with the result, I am told, that they will vote the democratic ticket. Four years ago the great cry on the part of those opposed to Mr. Cleveland was that tariff reform would result in ruin to sides.

It is a question whether the republican manufacturers of this state who have made use of the pay envelopes sent out by the national republican committee have not overstepped the mark. The employes have heard much of the free trade, pauper labor cry during the past eight years, and it has lost its effect, and they consider the use of
